

Episode 141 show notes and advice

Episode description

For today's episode, Sarah catches up with Artist, Francis Hamel, to discuss his fantastic new exhibition 'Thirty Gardens,' which captures some of Britain's most spectacular gardens in the most unexpected lights. From their most favourite gardens to finding inspiration in horticulture, learn why Francis considers gardens to be the steppingstones between interiors and landscapes.

In this episode, discover:

- An exclusive look at Francis' brand-new exhibition
- Stunning gardens to visit

episode 141 advice sheet

'Thirty Gardens' – The exhibition

From Levens Hall in winter to Great Dixter, and the Trap Ground Allotments in summer, Francis Hamel's new exhibition, Thirty Gardens, is the result of an eighteen-month painting odyssey taking the artist to some of the country's most beautiful locations.

Painting at dawn and dusk, when the light is low, the shadows are long and the gardens are at their most magical, Hamel's paintings delight in unexpected views and the search for those perfect moments when emotion, light, and structure combine.

- Visit Francis' website. (<https://francishamel.com/>)
- Or to book your tickets for 'Thirty Gardens' at The John Martin Gallery website (<https://www.jmlondon.com/>)